A MESSAGE FROM WPP'S CEO & CHAIRMAN OF THE BOARD

To all cohorts in this great endeavor

Dear friends,

What an incredible year of accomplishments. And indeed, an incredible path forward. It is all made possible because of our diligent and thoughtful commitment to the coherence between our strategy, our operating model, and partnerships across WPP's entire ecosystem. The relationship between our staff, partners, donors, and health professionals is the reason for our success in caring for the most vulnerable of vulnerable children.

Fiscal Year 2023 was comprised of great stories about caring for more children, reducing the time to their care, and improving the impact on their lives and that of their families. World Pediatric Project is committed to focusing on the children on waiting lists caused by the pandemic. WPP delivered thousands of services for thousands of children, with over 700 surgeries this past year alone.

A part of this success can be attributed to more in-country care of the children, more in-region and intra-regional referrals, and great attention to sponsorship opportunities for removing barriers to life-transforming surgeries. This approach is consistent with the strategy to build capacity in the countries and in the regions we are active in. Of course, we continue to rely on U.S. hospital partners to care for the most complex of cases that cannot be treated abroad.

As exciting are the larger initiatives in global health and supporting the improvement of pediatric health systems. WPP has initiated a partnership with UNICEF in the area of infant mortality, notably scaling our neonatal training program. Each year there are 2.5 million newborns that pass away within the first 28 days of life, representing more than 150 million years of life lost. We have partnered with Hospital Maria in Honduras in their efforts to increase utilization of that incredible facility, therefore creating improved care for more children now and into the future. WPP also has achieved "Observer Status" at the Organisation for Eastern Caribbean States, allowing full participation on all health-related discourse at the government ministerial level, where we can learn about their priorities and share our insights and know-how. And we've returned to one of our starting points, Guyana, with pilot surgical programs in both orthopedics and cardiac care.

The importance of WPP's financial condition, and management of our fiscal health, cannot be understated. We are the custodians of the assets given to us by our ecosystem. Revenues increased by more than 30% over the previous year, far outpacing average industry, while our expenses only increased 16%. And we were able to reduce the deficit by almost 80% despite adding staff to support increasing capacity to serve more children. The trend lines are incredibly positive, and we expect similar progress to continue into 2024 and beyond.

Accomplishments are also showing in other ways. One of our 3-year strategy goals is to expand the WPP footprint in the United States. It is with a great sense of pride and joy that we share the launch of our presence in North Carolina with the establishment of a WPP office in Raleigh, NC. Meanwhile, there are other opportunities for expansion the organization continues to consider, notably where we have a critical mass of donors, medical facilities, and health partners.

Within the organization we have concluded the regionalization of our structure, providing greater autonomy within the region, aimed at being more community-driven, and for decisions to be closer to the frontline of the organization. Learning and development have played significant roles in our transition. Suffice it to say that the entire organization has risen to a higher order of knowledge, understanding, capabilities, and competencies that form the foundation to build our future. Everyone has risen to the occasion. Everyone has raised the bar.

This same spirit is also permeating throughout the Executive Board of Directors. While the core beliefs and values remain constant, the Board is also evolving. It has been blessed with many members instrumental in WPP's growing service to children. Consistent with organizational evolution, how the Board operates is also transforming. This past year we've seen the addition of outstanding new members who will bring fresh insights and energy to the Board and its guidance for the entire organization. Our Board committees also continue to harness these reservoirs of expertise for the benefit of guidance towards greater impact for children.

This incredible journey continues. We remain true to our core. We seek opportunities for greater service to the children. We will ever-improve the way we work so we can achieve greater impact in the lives of children - the 30% of our population that represent 100% of our future. We invite you to recommit to our purpose, continue your partnership with us, engage in every capacity possible, and contribute however you can to HEAL A CHILD and CHANGE THE WORLD.

With sincere gratitude and
In service to the children,

Vafa Akhavan

Year One of WPP's Three-Year Strategic Plan

As WPP completes the initial year of our three-year strategic plan, we are enthusiastic to unveil the foundational work that has been laid for the continued development of our ten-year strategy: to elevate the human condition by enabling a sustainable transformation of access to advanced pediatric healthcare.

Over the past year, WPP has been actively working on regionalizing our organizational framework and prioritizing community-driven programs to strengthen local healthcare systems. This strategic shift is leading WPP to develop unique and sustainable models for advanced pediatric care, which are being implemented across all the regions where the organization operates.

Initiatives

NEW PARTNERSHIPS

In collaboration with the government of Guyana, we have prepared a pilot program scheduled for launch in fall 2023. This initiative signifies the revival of a longstanding partnership aimed at increasing access to advanced pediatric care, offering essential training, supporting local capacity-building efforts, and strengthening the healthcare system for the benefit of children in Guyana.

ENGAGEMENT AT MINISTERIAL LEVELS

We formalized our engagement and partnership with noted "observer status" with the Organization of Eastern Caribbean States (OECS). WPP shares a seat at the table to share insights with key decision-makers in the region as we continue to increase the efficiency of its regional model.

EXPANDED OUTLETS FOR CARE

Through targeted partnerships first within countries, then throughout the region, and lastly across the globe. These efforts have resulted in increased access to crucial healthcare services for children, allowing us to reach more children in less time. Thanks to new partnerships, this year 13 children were able to receive care in Spain and Colombia.

CLINTON GLOBAL INITIATIVE (CGI) PARTNERSHIP

Our partnership with CGI has resulted in the successful completion of a wide-ranging screening program for rheumatic heart disease and rheumatic fever in the Eastern Caribbean, covering four islands. This effort has allowed us to identify specific areas with high levels of concern and focus. These findings will serve as a vital basis for implementing targeted prevention and education programs in these identified regions.

CLINTON

TECHNOLOGY FOR PROGRESS

We have successfully initiated a pilot program to integrate smart-glasses technology into our surgical collaborations and training initiatives. This groundbreaking technological development enables real-time collaboration and holds the potential to enhance local healthcare systems significantly.

DIVERSIFIED FUNDRAISING FOR REGIONAL SUSTAINABILITY

To ensure the long-term sustainability of our regional endeavors, we're adopting a diverse fundraising approach. Our dedicated development teams within each region are leading focused fundraising efforts. This approach aims to create financially sustainable models, ensuring ongoing access to vital healthcare services for everyone.

While maintaining a commitment to our core programs, WPP has been able to pilot new sustainable models for care, build internal and external capacity, expand and diversify our funding model, and grow the organization's global presence as we continue to increase access to services, lessen time to care, and increase our impact for more children and communities where we work.

CARIBBEAN REGION WITNESSES UNPRECEDENTED GROWTH

Over the past year, WPP has witnessed a remarkable surge in our activities in the Caribbean region, deploying 43 teams for diagnostics, surgery, and capacity-building across seven countries. This marks a historic commitment from WPP to the region, with a strong focus on capacity-building programs to establish sustainable healthcare models.

A noteworthy development is the use of smart glasses for remote surgical training, which has transformed virtual training by providing real-time support to surgeons, even when a physical team is not present. Additionally, WPP's neonatal training teams expanded their reach, offering training to medical personnel in seven Caribbean countries, including St. Kitts and Nevis for the first time, benefiting over 500 medical professionals in neonatal care and surgery.

Furthermore, WPP has empowered in-country staff by delegating more responsibilities and decision-making authority, especially in the post-COVID landscape. This shift has opened doors for exploring regional avenues for healthcare, resulting in a notable uptick in the number of children in the Caribbean region receiving vital surgery and treatment.

TAHIR RYAN IS A QUIET 11-YEAR-OLD FROM ST. VINCENT AND THE GRENADINES. HE WAS REFERRED TO WORLD PEDIATRIC PROJECT THE SAME DAY THE ORTHOPEDIC CLINIC OPENED. DIAGNOSED WITH BILATERAL BLOUNT'S DISEASE, HE WAS SELECTED FOR SURGERY IMMEDIATELY. HIS SURGERY WAS PERFORMED ON THE SECOND DAY OF THE CLINIC BY DR. GORDON AND DR. CRAIG SMITH, WITH THE ASSISTANCE OF DR. ZACHERY SIROIS. HIS SURGERY WAS A SUCCESS!

TAHIR RYAN IS DOING WELL AND IS ATTENDING SCHOOL. CURRENTLY, HE USES CLUTCHES TO ASSIST HIS MOBILITY AT SCHOOL BUT HE CONTINUES TO IMPROVE. HIS DAD IS THANKFUL FOR THE SERVICE OFFERED TO HIS SON AND IS HAPPY HE WAS ABLE TO GET THIS MEDICAL INTERVENTION. TAHIR RYAN WILL CONTINUE TO FOLLOW UP WITH THE TEAM NEXT YEAR.

"I have witnessed an exciting evolution in our growth and strategy over the past couple of years at WPP. The most significant change is the expansion of our borders to encompass and serve the entire Caribbean region, whereas previously, we primarily focused on the Eastern Caribbean and Barbados. This expansion was a response to the apparent need for advanced pediatric healthcare for children in every single Caribbean territory. In this region, although we are many islands with individual governing bodies, our culture has been to support each other, as is evident in the creation of CARICOM fifty years ago, and more recently, the creation of CSME (CARICOM Single Market and Economy) to deepen our region's economic integration. It was only fitting that WPP would adapt this approach by continuing the expansion of our program to other islands, thereby deepening our medical reach to children who are in dire need of care.

Equally significant is the initiative to source medical outlets in the region as the first consideration for care. There is a certain sense of pride related to the ability to provide care to our children regionally. While we may not have all the resources to handle the more complex cases, we certainly do contribute significantly, which means our children are closer to home and, in some cases, we provide more cost-effective avenues that allow us to provide care to more children."

EXPANDING HORIZONS, ENRICHING LIVES, DOUBLING CARE

In FY 2023, we significantly expanded our impact by almost doubling the number of children assisted and more than doubling the surgeries performed, exceeding pre-pandemic levels. This achievement was made possible by developing programs that bring treatment closer to children's homes and by enhancing our treatment network locally, regionally, and internationally.

In addition to our primary focus on providing direct care, we enhanced our efforts supporting local providers, with 277 collaborating with WPP medical volunteers to improve their skills. We continue to support them throughout the year, ensuring they have the tools to care for children in their country.

Furthermore, recognizing that improving children's lives goes beyond the day of surgery, WPP staff provides case management and support on a consistent basis. In Guatemala, we have added a mental health component to provide additional services to children who live with physical limitations.

FIVE-YEAR-OLD, ADRIANA, FROM GUATEMALA, WAS ONLY 6 MONTHS OLD WHEN SHE HAD HER FIRST URINARY INFECTION. RECURRING INFECTIONS EVERY 15 DAYS TOOK HER AND HER PARENTS TO SEVERAL DOCTORS, BUT NONE COULD IDENTIFY THE CAUSE. IT WAS ONLY WHEN THEY BROUGHT HER TO ROOSEVELT HOSPITAL IN GUATEMALA CITY THAT SHE GOT A CLEAR DIAGNOSIS: SHE HAD LEVEL 3 HYDRONEPHROSIS IN ONE KIDNEY AND LEVEL 4 IN THE OTHER. FOLLOWING HER DIAGNOSIS, SHE HAD TO ENDURE A FOUR-YEAR WAIT BEFORE FINALLY RECEIVING TREATMENT FROM THE SKILLED WPP UROLOGY TEAM.

NOW, ADRIANA'S LONG WAIT IS OVER, AND THANKS TO THE TREATMENT SHE RECEIVED, SHE NO LONGER HAS TO MAKE FREQUENT TRIPS TO THE HOSPITAL.

"To look back at everything achieved in this past year is to remember the stories of every child that touched and transformed our hearts, and to appreciate and value the significant changes experienced by World Pediatric Project in Honduras.

We have not only reached more children in urgent need of specialized medical care, but we have also expanded our network of local medical volunteers and partners and enhanced the connection and common goals with the international medical specialists.

This significant achievement has been possible through the permanent support and guidance of our CEO, Vafa Akhavan, and the Latin America Executive Director, Natalia Rosales; their approach and availability have made it possible to be able to offer a response every time a need is presented to us.

Our Honduras team recognizes how our work has been strengthened and is now more impactful due to the renewed focus and additional support given to our region. We still have many challenges to overcome, and we feel ready to face them, with the knowledge that any economic investment brings immense benefits to the children helped and their families that is difficult to quantify. Within our limitations, and with unwavering commitment and love for our mission and the children we serve, we are mitigating the state's debt to those most vulnerable.

It is thanks to WPP donors' support and generosity that children with neurosurgical needs, who used to wait over six months after birth to access drains that prevent permanent brain damage, now get help soon after birth because our doctors have access to the surgical supplies needed for these procedures.

I do not have enough words to thank WPP supporters for the long-standing assistance given to the children of Honduras. I feel honored to be working for this important mission of helping children who lack access to specialized pediatric care, and to be WPP representative in Honduras."

Expanding Healing Networks: WPP's Commitment to Pediatric Care

WPP is renowned for its comprehensive pediatric care programs, with a focus on local and regional treatment options before considering advanced care in the United States. This approach optimizes resource utilization and supports partner countries' healthcare systems. However, in some complex cases, U.S.-based care is necessary, especially for long-term treatment.

As WPP expands its presence in Latin America and the Caribbean, we are increasing our partnerships with U.S. hospitals. Currently collaborating with 19 hospitals in 14 U.S. cities and planning to add two more soon. Our commitment to global healing aims to provide surgical care to more children both domestically and internationally.

In each city, medical and non-medical volunteers contribute their time and compassion to help children and families in need, reflecting the generosity of the human spirit at the heart of WPP's mission.

"I have been a part of the World Pediatric Project team for two years. It is a mission that aligns with my passion and professional goals, making it a joy to be driven by my work. The U.S. region's work is not a solo effort – it requires a team: a team of individuals who are driven, multitaskers, efficient thinkers, but most importantly, focused on the priority – our patients. I have witnessed our team, not only in the U.S. region but across WPP, transition and expand over the past few years. My role and its designated tasks have shifted, and in this change, I have learned far more about our program and its impact than I understood coming into the role.

My initial title, program coordinator, was centered on hands-on work. This included collecting medical and social information and treatment facilitation on many levels for the patient and the caregiver. As a program manager, I have been involved in individual case management, expanding my knowledge of time-sensitive diagnoses, working towards getting care for each child, seeking resources, and troubleshooting when necessary.

I would also like to highlight the number of children who received treatment and facilitated care through our referrals team this past fiscal year— a little over 50 kids! My ability to move within the organization and learn more about our partnerships (hospitals, medical volunteers, and resources) exemplifies the organization's step toward reaching more patients. I am proud to be part of the ongoing efforts to seek the most efficient care for every child referred to the U.S. region. All the while, it is knowing that I can provide my feedback or ideas to help because, as I said, WPP is, at its core, a team. During my time with WPP, I have seen this continued teamwork open more doors of possibilities for our mission."
