Every year, an estimated 2.3 million newborns die within their first month of life—most from preventable causes. What these tragedies often have in common is a critical gap: the absence of skilled providers and the systems needed to deliver care in those first fragile moments of life.

At World Pediatrics, we're working to close that gap. Through our Global Neonatal Program, we train and equip local healthcare providers with the skills, tools, and confidence to deliver lifesaving care when it matters most.

This work comes to life in communities around the world—from training more than 500 traditional midwives across rural Guatemala, to expanding access to respiratory care through innovative bubble CPAP and oxygen systems in partnership with Vayu Global Health.

We're also sharing lessons and building new partnerships. Harper Lorencki, Program Director of Neonatal Capacity Building, and Vafa Akhavan, CEO, recently attended the International Maternal Newborn Health Conference in Kenya.

By investing in local providers and supporting sustainable, locally led healthcare systems, we're not only helping save lives today. We're helping ensure more newborns have the chance to survive, grow, and thrive for generations to come.

Champions for Children Breakfast

On April 17, more than 130 supporters, partners, and volunteers gathered for our inaugural Champions for Children Breakfast.

Reflecting on 25 years, the morning featured powerful stories from our in-country partners, Dr. Jasmine Ellis from St. Vincent and Milagro Garel from Belize, and recognized the incredible dedication of our medical volunteers, many with more than 15 years of service!

Special thanks to Weinstein Properties, Dr. Fred Rahal and our Table Hosts for making the event possible.

Honduras Vision Trip

Members of the World Pediatrics Chapter Boards and leadership team recently gathered in Honduras for our first Vision Trip—an opportunity to experience the work firsthand during a scoliosis surgical week while continuing strategic planning and strengthening relationships across our chapter boards.

We're especially grateful to Richmond Board Chair Patrick Duke and his wife Rachel and Executive Director of Development Alyssa McBride for joining the visit, representing our community on the ground.

Corporate Sponsorships and Friends of the Band VIP experiences are still available for those who want to show up in a bigger way.
